The Governor’s Teaching Fellows Program is designed for faculty members of state colleges and universities, public and private, other than the University of Georgia. Meals, lodging and travel expenses are provided by the Governor’s Teaching Fellows Program. Participants are selected on the basis of teaching experience, interest in continuing instructional and professional development, ability to have an impact on their campus and on strong commitment and support from their home institution during their participation in the program. Any full-time, regular faculty member may apply.

The GTF has established a community of practice for ‘teaching and learning’ that has aroused public envy among colleagues from outside Georgia.

May 13-17; 20-24

The Summer Program 2013 participants attend a two-week symposium on the University of Georgia campus. The symposium includes a combination of instructional and faculty development activities.

The program investigates a variety of educational practices and pedagogical models, including:

- Instructional Practices and Learning Styles
- Leadership Issues in Higher Education
- Instructional Grant-Writing
- Distance Education
- Technology in Instruction
- Scholarship of Teaching/Learning
- Student Engagement
- Conflict Management
- Student and Classroom Assessment
